Who we are (April 2008)

AfricaRecruit was formally launched in 2002; it is at the forefront of mobilising skills and strengthening human resource capacity in Africa. It also facilitates the African Diaspora towards capacity building in Africa either through skills or investment in areas such as remittances.

AfricaRecruit raises global awareness about the need for human resource development in Africa by addressing the continent's brain drain, advocates for policies that help to develop and enhance Africa's human resource capacity, formulates and implements practical programmes that help to improve Africa's human resource capacity e.g. www.findajobinafrica.com which seeks to mobilise skills for Africa and www.africareerguidance.com an virtual platform to harness the capacity and capabilities of Africa's Youth/University Students to successfully engage in Africa's labour market by providing career guidance.

AfricaRecruit also seeks to engage with the African Diaspora's human, social and financial capital and provide a platform to enable them contribute to Africa's development.

Since its inception in year 2000, AfricaRecruit has achieved a distinguished record of, first, addressing the issue of skills capacity in Africa. Second, AfricaRecruit has organized workshops, seminars and conferences, both in and outside Africa, to link skills and development with issues and problems in the ground inside and outside Africa. Third, AfricaRecruit has produced a number of reports, data bases, working papers and position papers on skills and human resource issues, which have been used by policy makers and Overseas Development agencies as well as corporate. Fifth, and as a result of the four achievements listed above, AfricaRecruit has successfully fused itself into credible organizations, such as NEPAD, in order to enhance its capacity to reach out and collaborate with public, private and non-profit entities worldwide, for the purpose of pursuing its mission of building human capacity in Africa.

"Africa Recruit advocates the return of migrants to offer their skills and assist in capacity building through working in Africa on a temporary, interim, consultancy or permanent basis" The UK Government also recognises that the positive economic, social and political connections that diasporas maintain with their countries of origin have the potential to be "an engine of development". AfricaRecruit uses information technology and other modern communication techniques to provide information about opportunities in Africa to African professionals in the Diaspora and Africans' in Africa. It also uses these techniques to promote reforms in Africa that should make it more attractive for professionals and technocrats to consider pursuing careers in Africa.

To date, AfricRecruit has successfully undertaken and completed several educational, promotional and technical assistance projects in pursuit of its mission. AfricaRecruit has been featured in numerous international and regional media as a programme actively involved in Africa's development. The statements quoted below are testimonies to AfricaRecruit's achievements and success thus far.

Africa recruit worked with Save the Children and the Commonwealth Secretariat to run a successful workshop in March 2005 on harnessing the power and the voices of the African Diaspora to feed into human resources for health policy arena. The report was included in the meeting pack for the Commonwealth Health Ministers meeting. This meeting issued a statement of commitment to prioritise tackling the human resource bottlenecks. The report was also utilized at the World Health Assembly and the EC to increase focus and political commitment to human resources for health. Both have prioritised this area in forward planning- Save the Children, London- March 2007

"When AfricaRecruit was launched in 2002, I provided an endorsement in the firm belief that its objectives were not only noble but also realizable. Since then, the initiative has performed creditably and become a key part of the NEPAD programme to mobilize quality skills for Africa." H.E. Chief Olusegun Obasanjo Ex President Federal Republic of Nigeria 2005

It was indeed a great pleasure to work with you and to joining our efforts as Africa Recruit and NEPAD Secretariat for the preparation and the success of an opportune and important conference addressing a very crucial item related to Human Resources and ICT's in Africa at the moment where our Continent faces the big challenge of development and integration in the world economy. I am sure that we will have many other opportunities and initiatives to undertake together in the interest of Africa and its development- Mr. Belkacem Smaili, Coordinator, Human Resource Development, NEPAD Secretariat

“AfricaRecruit emphasised that inward investment flows from the Diaspora go beyond remittances. Many members of the Diaspora invest in their home countries in other ways, and efforts should be channelled into facilitating these flows. For instance, the private sector could help to create health insurance schemes for extended family in Africa, mortgage packages and investment in overseas stock exchanges. We consider that, as part of its dialogue.....and help engage the private sector to find additional ways-beyond remittances-to channel investment into home countries”

Diaspora	Organisations
Thanks to AfricaRecruit for organising such an interesting, informative, and thought-provoking two days seminar- Ritesh Doshi, A Kenyan Diaspora on the African Diaspora Investment Forum, 2006 “Over the course of the last two years, the AfricaRecruit team have provided a variety of services to our organisation, the Sierra Leone Diaspora Network (SLDN). These have included assisting us by organising and hosting meetings and seminars AfricaRecruit have been thorough, diligent and have ‘gone the extra mile’ to ensure that our joint efforts succeeded. The service provided by AfricaRecruit has been of the highest, most professional standards and we full expect to work with them in the future”. Ade Daramy On behalf of the Sierra Leone Diaspora Network Thanks so much to AfricaRecruit for responding to our last minute invitation to make the presentation on the African Diaspora. As you saw from the response, the participants were not only happy with your presentation, but excited about the AfricaRecruit initiative on the Diaspora. There is no doubt in my mind that the African Diaspora represents a crucial conceptual and practical link in Africa's quest for development and integration and so the work you do at AfricaRecruit is of immense importance and must be supported- Paul Opoku Mensah, Aalborg University	Thanks to AfricaRecruit for affording me the opportunity of being part of the recent conference. I am of the opinion that it went off very well and I thoroughly enjoyed the conference. It was extremely insightful- Lance Petersen, Participant at the conference “Achieving Best Value in Human Resources and Skills Development, October 2006, South Africa I left the conference thinking that Africa will be a force to recon with in the future. The presenters and attendees were all so positive and exited about the future of Africa and they had a clear understanding of the challenges and opportunities they face – David Swart, People Management Time Savers, Visual Business Tools (Pty) Ltd International Organization for Migration has had the pleasure to work with Africa Recruit and will hopefully continue to do so in the future. IOM highly value the expertise of Africa Recruit and their contribution to migration and development.” – IOM, London Africa Recruit is also important as a vehicle for dialogue between Africans living in and outside

Well done to you and your team at AfricaRecruit for putting together a very successful and over-subscribed event - the Kenyan Diaspora Investment Forum. This was clearly a much-needed first leap into the development of greater things! –
Nyokabi Musila, A Kenyan in Diaspora

AfricaRecruit has done well for Ewajo Ltd to create pathways for various levels of African social and economic participation-Olakunle Awosusi, Ewajo Ltd A Nigerian Diaspora

Here at the International Institute for Justice and Development (IIJD), we are deeply grateful to Africa Recruit for its support with the 2006 International Conference on the State of Affairs of Africa (ICSAA). While scholars and development experts outlined the many challenges facing the continent today, Africa Recruit unveiled solutions and revealed a hands-on way to help. Africa Recruit’s contribution throughout the conference was fantastic- Benjamin Ngachoko, President, IIJD

Cap Santé has a lot appreciated the contribution of AfricaRecruit to the “3rd Forum on health questions in Africa” Namur Belgium 2 December 2006. The presentation by AfricaRecruit has given rise to a lot of interest and allowed appreciating the dynamics of AfricaRecruit in contributing to the well-being in Africa with the participation of African Diaspora - Dr Masendu Kalenga, President of Cap Santé

the continents, which can create a dialogue with professionals in the Diaspora, and look at ways in which African governments can help foster the flow of skills back to Africa. NEPAD

Allow me first to express to you the support of the NEPAD secretariat to this initiative which demonstrates the dynamism of AfricaRecruit and its shared will to contribute constantly to the development efforts of Africa through the mobilization of the stakeholders and the Diaspora and their implication in development projects on the African Continent” NEPAD
